Vocantas Expands Its Team to Meet Demand for Innovative IVR Technologies

OTTAWA, ON, CANADA - June 23, 2008 - Vocantas Inc., recognized for their advanced Interactive Voice Response Systems (IVRS), has recently promoted Caroline Savignac to move up into a new role as Director of Healthcare Solutions to address the ever-increasing demand for innovative technologies that improve patient care, reduce staff burden and increase safety.

Formerly as Marketing Manager for Vocantas, Caroline had worked directly with Vocantas' clients to learn more about their unique objectives so that she could further promote the company's interactive voice technologies and speech recognition solutions. She will combine this experience along with over 18 years in IT to help new and existing clients across North America increase their operational efficiencies in healthcare and customer service applications.

Omran Elchamaa joins Vocantas as Director of Corporate Solutions to support the unending demand for new and innovative technologies that improve patient safety and increase operational efficiencies. Omran has extensive experience in the application of interactive voice and advanced telephony technologies from his tenure at Pronexus. His knowledge of these technologies, coupled with Vocantas success in the healthcare market will enable him to provide healthcare and corporate clients with effective options that will improve their ability to provide the best care for patients and customers across North America.
